VENUE HIRE

Why Up the Creek Is a Great Christmas Party Venue in London

Plan a Christmas party with personality at Up the Creek, combining flexible event space, food, drinks and live entertainment in Greenwich.

The annual Christmas party should be one of the easiest events of the year to enjoy.

For the person organising it, however, it can be one of the hardest.

You need a venue that works for a mixed group, has food and drinks, creates a proper atmosphere and gives people something to do beyond standing around making small talk.

Up the Creek in Greenwich brings those elements together in one place.

Give the Christmas Party a Proper Centrepiece

One of the easiest ways to make a Christmas party feel like an event rather than simply another work drink is to give the evening a focal point.

Live entertainment does exactly that.

Comedy can become the centrepiece of the evening, with drinks and food around it, giving everyone a shared experience and something to talk about afterwards.

Flexible Space for Different Types of Christmas Events

Up the Creek's two rooms give organisers much more flexibility than a single-room venue.

You might use one room for drinks and socialising and another for entertainment. You could host a presentation, awards or end-of-year thank-you before moving into the social part of the evening.

The venue can adapt as the event changes.

Food Without Moving the Group Somewhere Else

On-site thick-crust pizza gives you an easy, informal food option that works particularly well for Christmas parties.

Additional catering can also be arranged where the event calls for something different.

That means people can eat, drink and enjoy the entertainment without having to move between several venues during the evening.

Drinks, Bar and Entertainment Under One Roof

There is a real advantage to having the important parts of the evening in one place.

Guests arrive, settle in, have a drink, eat, enjoy the entertainment and continue socialising afterwards.

It is easier for the organiser and more enjoyable for the group.

It Works for Small Teams and Larger Company Groups

Not every Christmas party has the same format.

Some companies want an informal team night. Others want a larger event with presentations, awards, food and entertainment.

Because Up the Creek can be configured around the event, the venue can work across a wide range of company celebrations.

A Christmas Party That Does Not Feel Too Corporate

The best company Christmas parties feel like a reward rather than another work obligation.

A comedy venue already has personality, atmosphere and entertainment built in.

That helps people relax and gives the evening a very different feel from a hotel function room or standard corporate package.

Make Greenwich Part of the Night

Greenwich also makes a great setting for a Christmas event.

Teams can meet nearby beforehand, arrive together for the event and continue the evening locally afterwards if they want to.

Make This Year’s Christmas Party One People Remember

A good Christmas party does not need to be complicated.

Bring people together. Feed them. Give them a drink. Give them something genuinely entertaining to enjoy. Let the atmosphere take care of the rest.
