VENUE HIRE

Why Up the Creek Is the Perfect Venue for Your Corporate Event

Hire Up the Creek in Greenwich for presentations, meetings, team building and corporate events, with two flexible rooms, food, catering and entertainment.

Finding the right venue for a corporate event is often harder than it looks.

You need somewhere that works for the practical side of the day — presentations, meetings, workshops or team-building sessions — but you also want a space where people can relax, eat, drink and enjoy themselves afterwards.

That combination is exactly where Up the Creek in Greenwich stands out.

With two flexible rooms, on-site food, catering options, bar facilities and the ability to add entertainment, Up the Creek can adapt to a wide range of corporate events without forcing you into a rigid format.

Two Rooms Give You Much More Flexibility

One of the biggest advantages of Up the Creek is having two separate spaces available.

You might use one room for a main presentation and the second for breakout sessions. You could run workshops in smaller groups and then bring everyone together later. One space can be used for formal business while the other is prepared for food, drinks or entertainment.

Presentations Without the Hotel-Conference-Room Feeling

There is a place for traditional conference venues, but not every company wants another day in a windowless hotel meeting room.

Up the Creek is already designed around live performance, so it naturally lends itself to presentations, talks, panel discussions and company announcements.

Ideal for Meetings, Workshops and Breakout Sessions

Corporate events often involve more than one format. You may need a main meeting in the morning, smaller working groups in the afternoon and a social event afterwards.

Having two rooms makes that much easier.

A Great Setting for Team-Building Activities

The rooms can accommodate different exercises, workshops, games, challenges or creative sessions, with groups moving between activities during the day.

And because the venue already has entertainment at its heart, you can finish with live comedy, a quiz, music, a private performance or another form of entertainment.

Food Is Already Part of the Venue

At Up the Creek, you have the advantage of on-site thick-crust pizza, giving you a simple and popular option for feeding a group without needing to move everyone elsewhere.

For events that need something more tailored, catering options can also be built into the event.

From Coffee and Presentations to Pizza, Drinks and Entertainment

You could start with coffee and a company presentation, move into workshops and breakout meetings, break for lunch, run a team-building activity in the afternoon, then open the bar, bring out the pizza and finish with entertainment.

All in the same venue.

Catering Can Be Shaped Around the Event

Different corporate events have very different requirements. A three-hour presentation does not need the same catering as a full company away day.

At Up the Creek, catering can be approached around the event rather than forcing every booking into the same package.

Add Entertainment Without Hiring Another Venue

Entertainment is already part of the venue’s DNA.

Live comedy is an obvious choice, but the venue can lend itself to a broader range of entertainment and social activities depending on the event.

It Works for Much More Than Traditional Corporate Events

Presentations. Board and company meetings. Training days. Team-building exercises. Company away days. Product launches. Panel discussions. Networking events. Workshops. Awards and staff celebrations. Private performances. Christmas events. Client events.

The rooms can be configured around the event you want to create.

One Venue, Many Possibilities

Two rooms. Presentation space. Breakout areas. Meeting and workshop possibilities. Team-building activities. On-site thick-crust pizza. Additional catering options. A bar. Entertainment.

And the ability to move from business to socialising without moving the entire group somewhere else.
